

Perfection Question

What is perfection? Is it what you see when you look at your own reflection? In striving for it, are we inadvertently saying that the creator's creation need be perfected? The very question shows that self-worth has been neglected a pandemic in which the world has been infected. See, imitations proven critical to the inability to be individuals, lost sight of the purpose for which your existence is really fo, true calling rejected.

Have you ever thought that the creator made us to be such unique separate forms of perfection different sizes and beautiful complexions powerful beyond belief but hijacked of such recollection by public perception blinded by clouds of misconception prettied up deception.

Perfection is the temple your souls livin, the reflection in the mirror you're lookin in. Forced to live dormant deep within, buried underneath inferiority that was beaten in. So I ask again this question,

What-Is-Perfection??
